

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

PERHAPS the young girls and matrons who are interested in midsummer fashions of this year may be also interested in knowing what a midsummer American bride couple wore at the occasion of their wedding 150 years ago.

A bride of that period, described as lovely in mind and person, was attired in light blue brocade, with shoes of the same material. These shoes had high heels, not larger than a gold dollar, and sharply pointed at the toes.

Her dress, strictly in the mode, was trained. Her short brocade bodice opened over a white satin stomacher embroidered in colors, and had a blue cord laced from side to side. On the bride's return from the church, after the ceremony, she put on a thin white apron of ample dimensions, tied in front with a large blue bow.

The groom had a coat and waistcoat of peach blossom cloth, lined with white satin. He wore small clothes, knee buckles, silk stockings and pumps, and carried a cocked-hat.

Virginia, always one of the gayest of the colonies, was especially so in 1758. In midsummer of that year, Miss Jenny Washington, of Westmoreland county, made the impression upon a visitor and a stranger, of moving with propriety when she danced a minuet, and without any flirts or capers in a reel or country dance.

She is said to have appeared in a chintz cotton gown, with an elegant blue stamp, a sky blue silk quilt, and a spotted apron. Her light brown hair was craped up with two rolls at each side, and on the top was a small cap of beautiful gauze and lace, interwoven with artificial flowers.

Miss Priscilla Hale, Miss Washington's friend and companion, is mentioned as a slim, silent girl, with black eyes and a good set of eyebrows, considered in Virginia essential to beauty. She was dressed in a white Holland gown, cotton, quilted very fine, had her hair craped up, and on it a small tuft of ribbon for a cap.

In the year 1795, soft, clinging materials superseded the stiff brocades and rustling silks. Gowns were made with narrow skirts and short bodices, with long tight-fitting sleeves. The shoulders were generally uncovered, but muslin or gauze handkerchiefs were sometimes worn in the house, and scarfs knotted in front and falling to the feet were used for outdoor purposes.

So much for the 1795 Directoire gown. There is nothing said, however, about the "ferry" which, but it has no place in the annals of historic dress.

Recital at University.

A charming recital was given Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Summer School of the University of Virginia, in Cabell Hall, Mrs. M. B. Thomas, of Richmond, soprano singer; Miss Kate McNeil, violinist; and Miss Irvine, pianist, were those taking part in the recital. Mrs. Thomas was heard with especial pleasure in Lehmann's "Endymion," in "The Last Rose of Summer," and in several English and Italian numbers. Miss McNeil was loudly applauded in Schumann's "Träumerei," and Miss Irvine made a most sympathetic accompanist.

It would surprise you to know how many manufacturers of furniture use Ivory Soap to give a finishing touch of beauty to the things they make.

This is the recipe:

Dissolve one-fourth of a cake of Ivory Soap in boiling water. Add a pail of warm water, in which put two tablespoonfuls of kerosene. Stir thoroughly. Wash furniture with a soft cloth. Dry with another soft cloth.

NERVOUS HEADACHES

Frequently Caused by Mental Overwork.

Can Be Cured Only By Toning Up the Nervous System, the Treatment Which Restored This Young Woman to Health.

One who has not endured the suffering caused by nervous headache cannot realize the awful agony of its victims. Worst of all, the ordinary treatment cannot be relied upon to cure nor even to give relief to the sufferer. Some doctors will say that if a person is subject to these headaches there is nothing that will prevent their recurrence.

Nervous headaches, as well as neuralgia, are caused by lack of nutrition—the nerves are starved. Feed the nerves by furnishing through the blood the elements which they require and the cause of these nervous troubles is removed. The only way to feed the nerves is through the blood and it is in this way that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have accomplished so many remarkable cures.

Miss F. Mae Markell, of 103 Hueletts Street, Libanus, N. Y., says: "I had nervous headaches for several years. They began when I was a student in the high school. I was studying hard, grew pale and thin and my friends were afraid I was going into a decline. I had no appetite, no digestion, was poor and I lost in weight. The headaches came on two or three times a week and sometimes every day. They were so severe that quite often I would have to go to bed when I came home from school. My blood was in such a bad condition that my hands were covered with a rash."

"Our family doctor benefited me for a time, but did not seem able to cure me. My grandfather told me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, saying they had helped him. I found that they were helping me and took them until cured. When school opened again I was strong and able to study and have never had the headaches since."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. They are guaranteed to be free from opiates or any harmful drug and cannot injure the most delicate system.

They did not return with the others, and later a message was received by the young lady's parents announcing the marriage.

MASSIE JUMPS TO HEAD OF RACE

Pony Cart Contestants Make Remarkable Gains—Miss Folkes Second.

After a long, hard race, James Pleasant Massie now leads the riders in the pony and cart contest, with 3,642 votes, Christina Folkes, leading heretofore, being a close second, with 3,055. Kenneth Goode is third, with 1,874. Nicholas Drake is still holding his own, and is making remarkable gains every day, now being in the fight for first place. Norris Willis jumped thirty-six places, and is now fourth. Robert Buggs, of Farmville, has made a good showing. Otella McGill jumped from the bottom of the race to tenth place.

In sending in coupons contestants are urged to separate the Sundays from the dailies, as it saves untold work in counting. The next publication of standings will be made in Sunday's paper, and with the present outlook several more astonishing changes will be made.
